That’s where Cape Fear Valley Health Foundation steps in. Thanks to the generosity of individual donors in our community, Cape Fear Valley employees, grants and donations from businesses and civic groups, Cape Fear Valley can undertake projects like the Pediatric Intensive Care Unit renovation. And provide medications to low-income individuals through the Cumberland County Medication Access Program [CCMAP]. And provide help to patients undergoing cancer treatment through Friends of the Cancer Center. And helping family members stay close to loved ones during a hospitalization through Stanton Hospitality House.

You can read about all these programs and more in this issue of Making A Difference magazine. I hope some of the stories will move you to help by donating your time and talents, by participating in one of our fundraising events or by simply writing a check.

No one can do everything. But everyone can do something. Help Cape Fear Valley Health Foundation help our community. Alone, we can only do a little. Together, we can do so much.
When Pamela Gayle, 61, worked full-time getting her prescription medications was easy. She just called them in to the local drug store, paid a $20 co-pay and took them home without thinking about it. Everything changed when she lost her job after 14 years of employment. Not only did she have a loss of income, but she lost her prescription drug benefits as well. Gayle has diabetes and high blood pressure, which require her to take numerous medications including insulin, potassium, cholesterol and blood pressure medications. The costs for these medications are significant, but going without them would put her health at risk.

“Pride got in my way,” she says. “I didn’t want to ask for help.”

But when a call to her usual drug store proved that the cost of buying her insulin without insurance would be more than $500 per month, Gayle knew she had to swallow her pride. She made a call to the Cumberland County Medication Access Program (CCMAP) and began the short journey to getting the medications she needed. Now instead of paying $500 per month for insulin, Gayle pays just $3.

A partnership between Cape Fear Valley Health System and the Cumberland County Health Department, CCMAP offers free or low-cost medications to those in need.

“We help uninsured patients fill their prescription needs if they have an income below 250 percent of the Federal Poverty Guidelines,” says Chris Tart, Director of Outpatient Pharmacy Services at Cape Fear Valley Health System. “The patient must be low-income, without prescription insurance and a resident of Cumberland, Sampson, Harnett or Hoke County.”
In the years since, CCMAP has filled more than 209,000 prescriptions worth $60 million to the program’s participants. Currently more than 2,100 people are enrolled in the program. Many of them are unemployed or work for employers who do not provide affordable health insurance.

The pharmacy at CCMAP – located inside the Cumberland County Health Department – receives medications from various places. Many of the medications are donated. Some are samples donated from physicians and clinics, as well as from other non-profit pharmacy programs that have extras to share. Occasionally a patient will donate unneeded medication back to CCMAP. This medication is stored in our pharmacy and can be used for other patients in need.

CCMAP began in August 2002, when the Cape Fear Valley’s Board of Trustees approved the program and hired its first program manager.

The program’s staff then collaborated with Better Health of Cumberland County, The CARE Clinic, the Mental Health Center, the Department of Social Services and the Health Department to launch the program.

Those who think the application process is too complicated to bother with needn’t worry.

“There is a short application to fill out,” Gayle says. “They make it very easy.”

To apply for assistance, you will need to provide proof of income, proof of county residency and other documents as required. Staff members at CCMAP will conduct an interview with the applicant and then fill out any initial paperwork as well as any follow-up paperwork needed for refills.

With the help of CCMAP, the uninsured need not suffer from complications of high blood pressure, diabetes or high cholesterol simply because they cannot afford their medication.

“That is the real reason we exist,” says Tart, “we are trying to keep people healthy and out of the hospital and Emergency Department, by providing our patients with maintenance medications at little to no charge.”

Pamela Gayle is certainly glad she called.

“I am truly blessed,” she says. “Without CCMAP, I would not be able to get my insulin. Sometimes you have to put aside your pride. When you need help, there are people out there that will help you. But they don’t know you need help if you don’t ask.”

Cumberland County has about 40,000 uninsured residents, and approximately $400,000 annually is needed to continue to provide CCMAP services for those in need.

Cape Fear Valley Health Foundation accepts contributions for the CCMAP program on an ongoing basis and submits grant proposals on behalf of the program. Your donations can help the community’s uninsured, like Pamela Gayle. To make a tax-deductible donation, please write CCMAP in the memo field of a check and mail it to: Cape Fear Valley Health Foundation, P.O. Box 87526, Fayetteville, NC 28304.
The Lighthouse Society is a program that offers assistance to Cape Fear Valley employees who have experienced a catastrophic event causing financial hardship. Lighthouse funds are donated solely by Cape Fear Valley employees in order to assist other Cape Fear Valley employees with meeting essential expenses, such as housing, utilities and car payments.

“Just knowing that the staff cares enough about their co-workers to donate means so much,” says Penny Pridgen, Employee Assistance Program and Lighthouse Society Coordinator. “It makes me feel like we are a family. You know, we spend more time each day at work than we do at home, so it is nice to see others feel the same way.”

Cape Fear Valley’s Lighthouse Society is a unique program. Pridgen spends many Friday afternoons delivering payments to utility companies on behalf of employees. She says tellers often remark how nice it is that the health system has such a program for its employees.

“I feel honored to be a part of it,” Pridgen says. “It’s an honor that people trust me to run the program.”
Foundation employees are also touched by how generous health system employees can be.

“Employee giving is important,” says Sabrina Brooks, Foundation Manager, “Because it shows the community that our employees support the work of the Foundation and recognize the importance of what we do to care for the patients of Cape Fear Valley.”

“We told employees that $2 per paycheck, which is the cost of a soda and a pack of crackers, can help provide a car seat for new parents, a wig for a cancer patient, dinner for guests at Stanton Hospitality House or pay a utility bill for a co-worker in need,” says Brooks.

The 2012 employee donation totals are still being calculated. However, since 2000, Employee Campaign donations to the Foundation and Lighthouse Society have totaled more than $2 million.

“That represents a lot of rent payments and car repairs for fellow employees in need or in crisis,” says Brooks. “Not to mention all the utility bills and medications for cancer patients, car seats for new babies, clothing and coloring books for ill or injured children and nights for out-of-town families at Stanton Hospitality House.”

Together, we can put all our efforts, big and small, to work for our neighbors, friends and family who find themselves needing the services of Cape Fear Valley Health. We can’t all be in the operating suite or deliver radiation therapy or unblock a clogged artery. We can, however, still make a difference.

FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 14
AT SKYVIEW ON HAY STREET
The weather was unexpectedly warm on Saturday, Sept. 15, as more than 950 supporters turned out at Cape Fear Valley’s Medical Arts Center in downtown Fayetteville for Cape Fear Valley Health Foundation’s Friends of the Cancer Center 2012 Ribbon Walk & Ride.

The mood on the lawn was jovial. Groups milled about, enjoying bagels and coffee donated by Panera Bread. To the left there were motorcycle enthusiasts decked out in leather, ready to support CFV cancer patients in the riding portion of the event. On the right, there were brightly clothed walkers, wearing shirts commemorating loved ones lost to cancer as they mingled with cancer survivors in special Survivor T-shirts. Laughter and excitement drifted through the air.

American Idol contestant and Fayetteville native, David Leathers, Jr., kicked things off with the national anthem before the United States Parachute Association literally dropped in on the party. Then a group of HealthPlex Zumba instructors – joined by many local mascots – revved up the crowd and got everyone moving.

When the walk began, Hay Street was flooded with walkers and the feeling of community was palpable. It was clear by the turnout that our community supports the Friends of the Cancer Center, as well as the patients battling the disease each day.

“I wish I could personally thank every single person for registering and donating,” said Tara Brisson Hinton, Friends of the Cancer Center Coordinator. “We are grateful to all our sponsors that helped make this possible. The turnout was unbelievable!

So many people came out to celebrate, honor and remember.”

Events such as the Ribbon Walk & Ride provide thousands of cancer patients at Cape Fear Valley Cancer Treatment and CyberKnife Center and their families with emotional support, information resources, prescription medicine, food supplements, wigs and turbans, emergency funding for utilities and travel assistance for treatment – all at little or no expense to the patient.
“It means so much to not only maintain the services we provide, but be able to continue to grow in what we can offer our patients.”

— TARA HINTON

“This year we raised more than $78,000,” says Hinton. “Imagine how many patients we can help with that money! Even the smallest donation can help. Every $50 can help buy a patient a massage. Every $100 can help purchase a wig.”

Funds received also help provide programs for cancer patients, such as the Artful Reflections Art Therapy Program, the Oasis Complementary Medicine Program and the Coming Together Program for children and grandchildren of patients.

“This year we are able to try a new therapy program,” says Hinton. “It means so much to not only maintain the services we provide, but be able to continue to grow in what we can offer our patients.”

The Friends of the Cancer Center are hoping that the event itself will continue to grow each year. In addition to having nearly 150 more participants this year than in 2011, and 46 teams, the Friends group also added a Survivors Reception the night before the walk. More than 225 cancer survivors and their loved ones were in attendance to enjoy food, music, a photo booth, silent auction and door prizes.

It’s not too early to begin preparing for the 2013 Ribbon Walk & Ride on September 21. The Cape Fear Valley Cancer Center staff team – who earned the Crystal Ribbon trophy for bringing in the most donations – held their first bake sale this past October, raising over $1,600, with every cent collected going to next year’s walk.

If you would like more information on the Ribbon Walk and Ride, or how you can help support local cancer patients at Cape Fear Valley Cancer Treatment and CyberKnife Center, please call 615-1434 or visit www.ribbonwalkforcancer.org.

EXTENDING A WARM HAND of WELCOME
A house may not be a home, but a house that provides love and support can easily be — even if for a little while. Simon Alicea learned this lesson during what might have been the worse time of his life.

Earlier this year, the native New Yorker spent almost two weeks at Cape Fear Valley’s Stanton Hospitality House while visiting his ailing nephew in the hospital. The family member, Angel Perez, was being treated for cancer at Cape Fear Valley Medical Center at the time.

Alicea said the guesthouse was a godsend because staying in Fayetteville would have otherwise been impossible for him. He not only brought down his wife, but 14 members of his extended family as well. They all stayed at the two ranch-style homes that comprise Stanton Hospitality House, located directly behind the medical center campus.

“I could go on forever about the place,” Alicea said. “The people there were just so nice.”

The nonprofit facility has been helping out-of-towners like the Aliceas since 1990, offering them a home-away-from-home as they visit loved ones being treated at area hospitals. Stanton Hospitality House’s goal is to reduce the financial and emotional burden that illness and hospitalization can often inflict upon families.

To date, the facility has provided more than 6,000 nights of accommodations to families from more than 50 North Carolina counties, 39 states and 10 foreign countries. It’s one of just 19 facilities in the state and one of approximately 150 in the U.S.

The two houses that comprise Stanton Hospitality House are so close to Cape Fear Valley Medical Center that families can walk to see loved ones there. Alicea routinely woke up early to go for jogs and clear his head before going to see his nephew. There, he and the rest of the family would sit for hours on end at his nephew’s bedside.

Angel Perez eventually lost his year-long battle with stomach cancer, but it didn’t cloud Alicea’s fond memories about his stay at Stanton Hospitality House. He was so moved by the kindness he experienced that he bought several hundreds-of-dollars worth of nonstick cookware as a parting gift.
The idea came to him while trying to cook pancakes with the facility’s previously donated cookware. Everything stuck to the frying pan he used, making for a disastrous breakfast. It was the only bad experience Alicea could recall about his stay.

“My wife and I just wanted to show our gratitude,” he said. “If I could have done more, I would have.”

Donations and monetary gifts are what keep Stanton Hospitality House open since it only asks for room donations of just $8 per person, or $15 per family, per night. The facility’s biggest fundraiser of the year is the annual Light of Life tree-lighting held by Cape Fear Valley Medical Center. People can honor or memorialize friends or family members by sponsoring a light on the tree. Lights are $20 per year or $200 for a lifetime. Businesses can sponsor a light for up to $2,000.

Proceeds go back to the house to help pay for staffing and supplies. Since there are only three staff members, people, businesses, churches and community groups can volunteer their time instead.

“We’ll have families and organizations come in and cook meals for the families,” said Deena Russell-Ware, Stanton Hospitality House Supervisor. “Or they’ll come in and do things like sponsor a movie night. Some will even come and do yard work or house cleaning.”

Cleaning up the houses isn’t easy. The main house is 3,200 square feet and has eight bedrooms, a full bathroom, half bathroom, and a kitchen large enough to house two stoves. The second house is slightly smaller with just three bedrooms.

Both were acquired by Cape Fear Valley Medical Center in 1996 and now fall under the umbrella of Cape Fear Valley Health Foundation.

Physicians, chaplains, hospital administration and Cape Fear Valley nursing staff can refer prospective guests.

Registration is through Cape Fear Valley Patient Relations at any of the health system’s hospitals, from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m., seven days a week. After-hours inquiries can be made directly to the Stanton Hospitality Staff at (910) 615-4032.

There is still time to donate to the 29th Light of Life Tree Lighting.

Proceeds benefit Stanton Hospitality House.

You can name a light on the tree in honor or in memory of a loved one, friend or favorite teacher. A one season light is $20. A lifetime light is $200.

Donate online at http://www.cfvfoundation.org or call (910) 615-1285.

Donation forms are available in the lobbies of Medical Arts Center, Cape Fear Valley Cancer Center, Highsmith-Rainey Specialty Hospital, Cape Fear Valley Medical Center and throughout the Health System.

Donations to Light of Life are accepted throughout the year.
Making over a bedroom for newborns has long been a time-honored tradition, but making over an entire wing?

Cape Fear Valley’s Children’s Center is renovating its north wing corridor into a new Pediatric Intensive Care Unit. The project is necessary because the center’s current PICU just isn’t big enough, no matter how tiny the patients.

When complete, the new PICU will house seven patient rooms, a nurse’s station, medication room, staff lounge, visitor break room, a linen and utilities room, and front desk area.

That’s a far cry from the current PICU, with its five small patient bays crammed into one large room. The only privacy afforded is through curtain dividers.

Patients and staff often struggle to maneuver inside the room due to all the specialized equipment. But it’s connected bay style-layout will give way to private rooms in the new PICU.

Construction workers have been working since the summer to rip out existing walls, floors and ceilings inside the north wing. The work hasn’t been easy and is being done while the rest of the Children’s Center is still open.

The only thing separating the construction from the rest of the unit is a temporary door and wall and an eye-catchingly obvious “DO NOT ENTER” sign.

New steel wall studs and cinder blocks, intermingled with new heating and ventilation ductwork and electrical wiring, make the work area look like new construction. But everything is being built onto existing foundation.

“Ripping out the solid block walls filled with concrete was a nightmare,” said Mike Reganhardt, Cape Fear Valley’s Construction Manager. “It’ll be much nicer in there once we’re done though.”

Despite the construction delays, Reganhardt says the new PICU is still on schedule for an early 2013 opening date.

Plumbing, foundation and electrical work will continue through November before workers begin installing walls, floor tiles and lighting. Workers will then be able to paint and finish off trim before declaring the new PICU open for business.

“The environment in the Children’s Center,” said Vince Benbenek, Vice President of Marketing & Outreach, “will finally equal the level of service our physicians and staff are providing.”
 TOUCHING the LIVES of people you love

The mission of the Cape Fear Valley Health Foundation is to develop, manage, and distribute resources to advance the delivery of high-quality health care by Cape Fear Valley Health. Six Friends groups are part of the Foundation. These groups and the volunteers that direct them help develop programs to assist patients with needs that contribute to the healing process, but that go beyond the scope of Cape Fear Valley’s mission to provide medical care and treatment.

• Friends of the Cancer Center nurtures, supports and guides cancer patients and their families.
• Friends of Children makes sure that a child’s perspective is never lost in the unfamiliar world of grown-ups and medical equipment.
• Friends of the Heart Center provides continuing support and fellowship to help heart patients and their families maintain a heart-healthy lifestyle.
• Friends of Nursing supports education and career development for those in the nursing profession to further enhance patient care in our community.
• Friends of Rehabilitation helps enhance independence for hundreds of people right here at home who have disabilities.
• Friends of Stanton Hospitality House supports Cape Fear Valley’s home away from home by offering rooms and comfort to families whose loved ones are hospitalized.

We gratefully accept checks, credit cards and cash to support our patients in need. Checks (made out to Cape Fear Valley Health Foundation) may be sent to:
